

The Tiger Moths

Biography

The Tiger Moths are a five-piece Americana inspired rock band from London. Heavily influenced by the late 60s/ early 70s folk-rock and country rock scenes, the Moths combine alt-country guitar runs, jazz-infused piano and a thundering rhythm section to forge a new and exciting twist on the Americana genre.

An established live act on the London scene, the band were Grand Finalists in the Isle of Wight Festival 2021 New Blood competition, reaching the final 20 acts in the competition after more than 5,000 bands applied. With two EPs to their name already, their debut LP, When Sunshine Departs, will be released in summer 2023.

Formed from the ashes of King of Spain - who released two records to critical acclaim on Shifty Disco records in 2008 and 2010 - and Erin Black and the Devil's Hand, they are Rich Orpin (vocals, guitar, harmonica), Alex Rosenberg (piano, vocals), Tom Watson (bass, vocals), Dave Moschini (drums) and Tom Fleming (guitar).
